INDIANA OBITUARY. Fred A. Ross, the "Best Mayor Terre

Haute Ever Had." Special to the Indianapolis Journal. TERRE HAUTE, Ind., April 23 .- Former Mayor Fred A. Ross died this morning from car or of the bowels. His death had been expected for some weeks. While Mayor Ross had lived in Terre Haute for fifty-five years, had been prominent in business and public affairs generally, his career as mayor for the six years ending last September has left for him a reputation by which he will be best remembered, that of having been "the best mayor Terre Haute ever had."

Frederick A. Ross was born in Searsport, Me., Aug. 5, 1834. When he was five years old his father moved to Oxford, O. In 1844 the family moved to Terre Haute, where the father was in charge of the mercantile business of W. E. Chamberlin, who afterward went to California and has since been associated with D. O. Mills in large enterprises on the Pacific coast. In 1851 Frederick Ross went to Wabash College, where he remained until 1854, when he became a partner of his father in the mercantile business. In 1864 he moved to Philadelphia, but soon returned to Terre Haute. He became a partner of L. A. Burnett in the leather and hardware business, and in 1872 went into the real estate business. He served a short time in the civil war. In 1859 he married diss Frances Bradley, of Indianapolis, daughter of John H. Bradley, a prominent rallroad lawyer at the time. There are three children living, one of whom, a daugh-ter, is a teacher in the Terre Haute High School. Mrs. Ross is a sister of Mrs. John M. Kitchen and Mrs. Morris Defrees, of In-

He told of the latter's endeavors to entrap Esterhazy by inviting him to write a letter, adding that he (Billot) opposed this plan. Finally Colonel Picquart seized one of Esterhazy's letters while in the post, and on Trueblood on "Wendell Phillips," and after | representations by General Gonze of the danger of such seizures, he (Billot) decided to send Picquart into exile. The witness repudiated, however, any idea of sending him on a perilous mission. General Billot denied ever having said that Dreyfus ought to be assassinated. In concluding his evidence he maintained the seriousness of Col. Picquart's conduct.

Mr. Strong, Paris correspondent of the London Observer, gave an account of his transactions with Esterhazy. When he first interviewed him, last October, Esterhazy asserted that the general staff possessed automobiles and the star routers expect to 153 papers proving that Dreyfus was guilty. On another occasion, according to Mr. Strong, he said: "Undoubtedy Dreyfus is guilty, but the general staff treated him shamefully."

Mr. Strong told the court he thought this might refer to orders given Esterhazy to fabricate the bordereau. After recording M. Leon Daudet's opinion that Esterhazy was perhaps neither a traitor nor a bandit, but had certainly written the bordereau, Mr. Strong described how Esetrhazy had invited him to make a sensation in a foreign newspaper by announcing that he (Esterhazy) had written the bordereau at the order of Colonel Sandherr, because the general staff, though possessing moral proofs, lacked material evidence of the guilt of Dreyfus.

"I wrote it," said Esterhazy, "without the court-martial to condemn Dreyfus, but, warned by Henry that matters would not go as he desired, Mercier (then minister of war) decided to show the judges the 'Canaille D-D' document which determined their judgment."

The Girl Appeals to Humbert for Clemency and Has His Promise.

CAPRERA, Island of Sardinia, April 23 .-King Humbert and Queen Margherita, who left the bay of Aranci this afternoon on board the royal yacht Savoia, the squadron saluting, arrived here after a comfortable trip and left for Rome this evening. While in Caprera their Majesties visited the tomb and monument of Garibaldi and the room in which he died. They remained in the apartment a long time, inspecting souvenirs and conversing cordially with Menotti and with other members of the family. It is said that Signora Canzio, Garibaldi's daughter, addressed the King before her father's tomb an appeal in his name for clemency to political prisoners. According to the reports King Humbert replied: "My heart is not opposed to clemency and I shall not fail to seize the first favorable opportunity of acceding to your request.'

Captain Coghlan's answer to the department's request therefore will be awaited before any further attention is given to the matter. The officials were somewhat surprised to read in the morning papers the additional observations made by Captain Coghlan in his speech before the Army and Navy Club in New York last night, as they had hoped he had taken warning by the unfavorable comments which his former remarks had caused.

NEW YORK, April 23 .- Captain Coghlan, of the cruiser Raleigh, was to have been one of the guests to-night at the Montauk Club, in Brooklyn. Captain Allen transferred the sailors from their cramped quarters to his yacht and brought them into Corbett's dock, where a large crowd awaited them. Hot coffee and food were furnished them upon the boat and the poor fellows fairly banqueted. The story of the disaster as told by Made Mattson and his men was a thrilling one. One of the bulkheads sprung a leak | many devotees of the turf at first refused from the heavy seas which were prevailing during the early part of Friday night. All hands were ordered to the pumps and worked hard, but the hold soon began to fill in spite of their efforts. The officers and men realizing that the steamer was cettling fast and sure to founder, took to the two lifeboats. Captain J. W. Hawthorn and fifteen men went in the first boat and were never again seen by the remaining men. Shortly afterward Mate Mattson and the rest of the crew, fourteen men, took to the second boat; this was about midnight. They had a compass and began to row for shore. A strong wind was prevailing, oars could make no headway. All day Sat urday the men tried to approach shore, but not even get a glimpse of it and almost despaired when they found they had spent all of Saturday night at the mercy f the sea, which washed over their frail tacked to an oar and it was then that Capt. Allen went to their rescue. The men when they landed were drenched to the skin and almost famished. They will remain here until they receive instructions from New York. Besides Mate Mattson, who conducted the party through the sough rip, the survivors are: Charles Andy, H. Kemper, D. Jackson, Louis Cook, Groupe Cook, H. Louise, G. L. Steamer Cut in Two. TACOMA, Wash., April 23 .- The steamship Glenogle crashed into the steamer City of Kingston about 4:30 o'clock this morning off Brown's Point, cutting the City of Kingston in two just abaft the boilers. The twelve passengers and crew of the Kingston were saved through the prompt action of officers of the Glenogle and Kingston and two ships lying in the harbor. So far as known no lives were lost. The Rev. Horace H. Clapham, rector of Trinity Church, occupied the stateroom struck by the Glenogle's prow, and was pinned in the wreckage for several minutes, only being released by the parting of the steamers. His forehead was cut slightly, but he was not seriously hurt. The Kingston was cut in two pieces, which have been towed to the harbor here. The Kingston is a total loss and the Glen-

OMAHA, Neb., April 23.-The Missouri river continued to rise steadily during the of Farnam street, where the big Omaha and Grant smelter is located the water is within about two inches of the top of the bank and any additional rise will inflict great damage on the smelter property. The Union Pacific tracks along the river, a block or two above, are partially under water and the ground is so soft that it is dangerous to run trains through the yards. The river is a roaring torrent and filled with all kinds of debris. Below the Union Paific bride it is three miles wide and the Burlington tracks are lapped by the waves. Trains run very carefully here. Cut-off lake is now brim full and the water is on a level with the planking of the bridge to Courtland Beach. The current that has set in from Florence lake southward is very strong and an additional rise means a probable shifting of the river channel. During the night some twenty families were driven out and the bottoms are now completely covered. The tracks and bridge of the terminal company are yet intact. Swift's big icehouse is above the water level, but men are kept. employed strengthening the embankments nearby. Reports from up river show that the water is falling, but the rise here is likely to continue another twenty-four hours.

Danger at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 23 .- The Missouri river at 7 o'clock this evening had reached three inches above the danger line, the government gauge at that hour registering 21.3 feet. This is a rise of eight inches since Saturday morning. The river was still coming up to-night and as the current is exceedingly strong serious damage to property in the lowlands may result. Men were kept busy to-day driving the squatters to higher ground and farmers and others spent the day moving their property and belongings to higher ground. The only real damage that has resulted so far has been the flooding of several cellars of business houses skirting the river. Gangs of men worked steadily all day pumping out water and removing goods. Harlem, across the river, has not yet experienced any serious damage, although a considerable portion of low land there has been submerged. It is believed that the river will reach its height to-morrow and begin to fall to-morrow night.

of Col. M. Lewis Clark, the widely known turfman who committed suicide yesterday in his room at Gaston Hotel, were taken to Louisville to-night by sorrowing friends. The party will arrive at their destination at an early hour to-morrow morning, and it is understood a public funeral will be held in that city shortly before noon. J. H. C. Clark, of Chicago, son of the dead sportsman, C. T. Ballard, of Louisville, a cousin, and Charles F. Price, secretary of the Louisville Jockey Club, an intimate friend and associate, arrived in Memphis this morning and took charge of the remains. All of the party returned to Louisville tonight accompanied by a delegation of Memphians, representing the Memphis Jockey Club, and other friends. The announcement of Colonel Clark's sensational suicide spread rapidly on the streets and only ejaculations of surprise could be heard. Only intimate friends were acquainted with the dead turfman's melancholy condition and to believe the startling news. Ill health and consequent despondency, coupled with other probable troubles, are assigned as the cause. It is a generally accepted fact that Colonel Clark was the lessee of the Harlem race track in Chicago, despite the assertion of close friends, who say that he was not intersted in a financial way in that association. It is thought that Colonel Clark had been worried over the outlook for races at Harlem this season. Secretary Nathanson was in Memphis a few days ago and con-ferred with Colonel Clark about the affairs of Harlem, but the result of this conference is not known. It is believed that Nathanson held out very little promise for a suc cessful season at the Chicago track, there being some circumstances tending to pre vent that result. To this cause a great deal of Colonel Clark's mental worry and unrest is attributed James H. Rees has been elected presiding judge at Montgomery Park in succession to Colonel Clark.

AMBUSCADES FORETOLD. A Spanish Colonel's Experience and Predictions

A recent copy of the Munich Aligemeine Zeitung contains an interview with Colonel Cordez, of the Spanish army, a man who has seen much service in the Philippines. By society with the Daughters of the American a singular coincidence he foretold the am- | Revolution. buscades of which our troops have recently suffered at the hands of savages. "A disciplined army fighting against savages must expect to be ambushed and see thousands of its brave soldiers massacred in cold blood," said the colonel. especially true with respect to the Fllipinos. Fiteen years of service in those islands have convinced me that victories, such as the Americans are achieving now, day after day, are really of little consequence. did the same, in a measure, yet were never masters of the situation. In the Philippines Europeans will never be able to proteet themselves against the basest treach-

"We Spaniards had a numerous, brave army there. We outnumbered the enemy tenfold, perhaps. My own men, in particular, were entirely acclimatized; they knew the country, the customs and the peoplayed on the invaders of their country was known and appreciated both by officers and men. We were constantly on our guard, but that did not prevent us from being ambushed time and again. No one marching in the bush is safe. My own experience shows that when we felt most secure we were usually nearest to partial annihilation. Marching ahead with the utmost care, and with the enemy apparently miles away, we often encountered the most deadly fire all of a sudden.

"The Filipinos are dangerously agile. Without disturbing a leaf, or cracking a bush they creep upon the body of a troop, never minding the outposts. They appear, discharge their ammunition with incredible velocity and vanish in the thicket no one knows where to. Once or twice I tried to pursue these dastards, but gave it up, seeing that I would lose only more men by so doing without gaining the slightest advantage. All the ambuscades through which I lived happened in this way: We were marching over the usually miserable forest roads or along the shore. Our 'swarm-AUSTIN, Tex., April 23.-It was learned ers' at the head, sides and rear reported 'everything quiet.' And it was quiet, deadly quiet. We couldn't see through the bushes. such as the big snakes make when shutting their jaws, then beating of muffled drums, some sharp whistling, and quick as a flash the forest was alive with brown devils. "A perfect hailstorm of bullets struck us, coming from the right and left, from the tops of trees and out of ravines. Heaven and earth seemed to have combined to destroy us. Fifteen, twenty, a hundred of my men were often killed before we could wheel about in line to open fire. We usually succeeded in driving off the enemy by quick, sharp mass fire, but looking at it in the right way that wasn't a great advantage after all. These savages had never intended to make a decided stand against our Mausers. They merely wanted to harass us, to kill and wound as many of us as possible and in that they succeeded. And having done this, they ran away to seek elsewhere for an opportunity to ambush us. "You will say," continued Colonel Cordez "that this sort of warfare is only possible in the bush. I grant that, but in the open field the Filipinos are no less dangerous. "They are quick in throwing up intrenchments as they go along and every smallest elevation of the landscape they know how to utilize. With the quick-firing and far-reaching rifles of the day they can turn trenches into equally good cover as the bush. They also have a tantalizing habit of impeding the progress of the enemy by a long succession of trenches and strength does not frighten them. As a gen eral thing they risk only short assaults and withdraw before the Europeans can bring their superior tactics into play. If repulsed they quickly gather again into new formations. You can't beat them in the long run. "The Filipinos will fight as long as they please or as long as they have ammunition, American victories notwithstanding. The Americans may take and destroy a dozen of Aguinaldo's capitals or residences, that will make absolutely no difference. To him one village is as good as another for issuing proclamations and keeping his government

SEWALL FOR GOVERNOR.

The Young Man Will Probably Preside Over Hawaii.

BATH, Me., April 23 .- Harold M. Sewall, former minister to Hawaii and present United States government agent on those islands, arrived home to-day on a visit to his father, Arthur Sewall. Mr. Sewall said that he was a candidate for Governor of Hawaii, but, being in the government service, he felt somewhat restricted in discussing the matter. He was away from his post on leave and had spent six days in Washington in conference with the authorities. He would not deny that his visit to Washington was relative to the governorship of the islands, neither would he affirm the rumor that the position had been tendered him by President McKinley. He said he would return to Honolulu within a week, and it is inferred from this that he reached a satisfactory understanding with the Pres-

Both Murdered and Hidden in a House Near Mount Carbon, Ill.

MURPHYSBORO, Ill., April 23.-In a house near Mount Carbon mine No. 6, in lonely strip of woods, the bodies of two murdered women were found to-day. They were Mrs. Mary E. Daire, wife of a miner, and Miss May Millstead, a friend who had been staying with Mrs. Daire during her husband's absence. Both had evidently been shot and then struck with a club. The house was plundered. It is believed the murder was committed Friday.

Harrison as a Jury Lawyer.

Saturday Evening Post. Former President Benjamin Harrison will be in New York early in May, and will leave on the 17th of that month for Paris, to deliver his argument upon the Vene-zuelan boundary question. This argument is certain to attract world-wide attention, not only because of its ability, but by reason of its delivery. In his fame as a statesman General Harrison's reputation as an advocate has been lost sight of by most persons. Long before his election to the presidency General Harrison was the leader of the Indiana bar, and he excelled in his rare skill as a "jury lawyer." His style of speak-ing was wonderfully effective. His pose was natural and his tone conversational. He talked to the jury alone, and oftentimes is unbalanced, made no attempt to escape, what he was saying could not be heard by but seemed to enjoy the sensation he had | the spectators in the rear of the courtroom. He generally spoke impromptu. In one famous case in Indianapolis, in 1876, he spoke for ten hours from notes made upon a single sheet of paper, reviewing technical testimony which took ten days to adduce, and his condensation was at the time regarded as one of the most marvelous ef-
